

MDRR REIT Madness!! + Wicked AMC Swing Trade End

By winkler · October 14, 2020

TL;DR

This blog post discusses a day of trading that included notable movements in MDRR and AMC stocks, highlighting a missed opportunity with a big runner and the impact of fake bankruptcy news on AMC. The author also questions the last time a REIT was the lead gapper in the market.

Quite the day.. solid day trading although I missed the big runner and then AMC slams down with fake bankruptcy news. Would love to know.. when was the last time a REIT was the lead gapper?

MDRR\$11.35+0.00% AMC\$1.89-5.50% \$IDGX XELB\$1.76-7.85% OCX—

https://youtu.be/4KbUwwWp_Tc

FAQ

What happened with AMC?

AMC experienced a significant drop due to rumors of bankruptcy, which were later revealed to be false.

What stocks are mentioned in the post?

The post mentions $MDRR, $AMC, $IDGX, $XELB, and $OCX.

What does the author think about the trading day?

The author describes the trading day as solid but expresses regret over missing a big runner.

What is a REIT?

A REIT, or Real Estate Investment Trust, is a company that owns, operates, or finances income-producing real estate.

Where can I find more details about the trading day?

More details can be found in the linked YouTube video.